Please join us for an eventful evening and learn more about the final lap of LA's Olympic bid. With the IOC selecting a host city in September, Los Angeles and Paris are running neck-and-neck.

Organizing the Olympic Games has been compared to building a Fortune 500 company in seven years and then tearing it down overnight. In early May, the LA2024 Olympic Bid Committee hosted a delegation from the International Olympics Committee in Los Angeles and showcased a purely LA storyline for the Olympic bid - one that would not only catalyze the region with revenue but would sustainably outlast the Games.

With Olympic events proposed at UCLA, USC, Exposition Park, LA Live, Honda Center in Anaheim, Rose Bowl in Pasadena, The Forum and the new LA Rams Stadium in Inglewood and more events as far-reaching as Westwood, Pacific Palisades, Long Beach, Carson, San Dimas, and Riverside County, it goes without saying that Southern California will be transformed should the city succeed in securing its bid for the 2024 Games.
